From the Pastors

"Mr. Osborne, may I be excused? My brain is full."

Filled and Overflowing:

"May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace as you trust in God, so that you may overflow with hope by the power of the Holy Spirit."

-Romans 15:13

Hopefully this cartoon flashback from "The Far Side" by Gary Larson, will provide a smile for your day. But beyond that, we also hope it will provide us all with some reflection, and perhaps even some new or different ways of being for our life with God.

It can be tempting for us sometimes to compartmentalize our faith in God and to relegate our spirituality to our brains. We can find ourselves in the habit of coming to church, listening for that bit of knowledge or nugget of wisdom to fill us up before we return to life as usual. Sometimes I (Pastor Mike) do the very same thing. I can focus so hard on getting the words, or the thoughts “right” for a sermon on Sunday but then never try to live it out to on Monday. It’s just on to the next item of the “to do” list.

In the forward to his book, “Finding Our Way Again,” author Brian McLaren recalls a time when he interviewed Peter Senge, a professor at MIT, and author of “The Fifth Discipline” in front of a large gathering of Christian ministers. At the beginning of the interview Senge told a story about being in a large book store and asking the clerk which books were the most popular. The clerk said that the most popular books were about getting rich on the internet. The second most popular books were on spirituality and particularly popular were books on Buddhism.

When asked why he thought books on Buddhism were so popular Senge replied, “I think it’s because Buddhism presents itself as a way of life, and Christianity presents as a system of belief. So I would want to get Christian Ministers thinking about how to rediscover their own faith as a way of life, because that’s what people are searching for today. That’s what they need most.”

God desires us to be more than people with “full brains”, although knowledge is important and we should be continually growing in what we know “about” God. God also desires us to be continually filled and overflowing with joy, peace, and hope in all areas of life. This comes from developing a living and dynamic life “with” God.

Our series this spring continues to be focused around our new church motto, “Growing in God. Living in Love.” The language is intentional about being active and on-going because that is what life with God is like. It is not to be a limited faith around a system of beliefs that we settle upon, but rather about a living and active God in the world who unsettles us with joy, peace, and hope!

What would it look like for me to grow in God and to live in love by making my faith more of a way of life than I currently am? What things would I need to do more intentionally? What things would I need to do less of intentionally? Maybe I need to try and step into that relationship with my neighbor. Maybe I need to find ways to become more aware of God during my day. Maybe I need to take a walk in the woods. Maybe I need to call that person I haven’t seen in a while. Maybe I need to go to church.

The good news in all of this is that God desires us to be filled and overflowing with the hope, peace, and joy of God, through the power of the Holy Spirit. Let us be careful not to excuse ourselves with only full brains! Let us seek to make our faith a way of life and then courageously step out to experience all that God has for us.

Growing in God. Living in Love together,

Pastors Mike and Sherri

Summer Youth Ministries Intern

We are pleased to announce Michaela Johnson has accepted the new position as Summer Youth Ministry Intern for 2016. This is a new position for this summer and we are excited to realize a longtime dream, going back to our Church on The Grow priority projects of “following up on Day Camp” to expand our youth ministries.

Michaela will be acting as Day Camp Director, as well as working with the pastors and churches to expand the Youth Ministry possibilities. In interviewing her, many different ideas came out and we are excited to see what the summer will bring. This is also an opportunities for Michaela to learn and grow in her leadership as she steps into a new “ministry” position.

This position is made possible by an excess in the Day Camp fund. Michaela will start on June 6 and will be with us through August. Be sure to congratulate her, and also volunteer so you can have a chance to work with one of our own “home grown” fabulous young adults!

Capital Campaign:

Capital Campaign: We are thrilled to announce we have had another banner month with the church Capital Campaign. We have received word from one of our major grant applications that it has been accepted and we are eligible to receive $50,000 for the completion of the back entryway and downstairs. We may not receive the funds until the Community Room/Old Fellowship hall is complete later this year, but we celebrate the news that brings us one large step closer to our $750k goal!

We also received a commitment of $1500 for 2016 and $1500 for 2017 from Schoharie Classis. We need your help to keep it going! With the launching of the church website and the ability to receive funds electronically through it, it makes it even easier for you to invite your neighbors, family, and friends to make a gift to the Capital Campaign!

To date, we have received: $439,719 and have $85,342 in remaining pledges.

In the past month, gifts were given:

By Peter and April Koska in memory of John & Bobby Poorman.

By Bethany Reformed Church, New Hope Reformed Church, and the Carlisle Fire Department.

We appreciate all those who have pledged and/or donated – thank you for your generosity!

D.Min. Update

My public presentation for my project “Navigating the Overwhelming: Increasing Congregational Resiliency” went very well at the beginning of May. And, as many of you know, I graduated May 21!

Thank you to everyone for your support, encouragement, prayers and involvement. Whether helping proof read papers (Lisa Ovitt and Jennie Mosher), or listening in on my presentation (Karen Olewnick, Wildfeather Segreto), or insisting we take more time to celebrate with family (the consistory), it was a very meaningful way to end the doctorate work and I thank you! Copies of my final paper are still available and I welcome any feedback. Thanks again for your support.

“The Good Failure”

A Ridder Reflection from Pastor Mike

At the Ridder retreat this past spring I became aware in myself of how I view “failure” and how that has had a negative impact on my life. I have grown to have an almost crippling fear of failure. While the familiar phrase for shooting an arrow or firing a gun declares, “Ready...Aim...Fire.” All too often I declare “Ready...Aim...Aim...Aim...Aim” and so on, until I feel “safe” or “confident” enough that it won’t fail. Why? Because for me a lot of times: Failure = Shame, meaning that if something I have done has failed, or something I was in charge of failed, then obviously I “am” a failure.

In so many ways this has continually kept me stuck in my own learning, stunted my growth as a disciple, and prevented me from getting into action with things God has had for me. I am happy and content to take all of the time in the world to talk about strategy, to plan, to get clarity, and to really think it through. None of which is bad, but then I (here comes that word again) fail to actually step into action and I allow my fears of failure to stop me. Where others may over-function out of a fear of failure, I under-function out of that same fear. I take on the anxiety of others and worry about whether or not it will be a “success” or a “failure,” however that has been defined. I even see how our church evaluative processes seek to define failure. All too often we review something by asking the question “How do it go?” To which, people respond either “Good.” Or “Bad.” Why are those the only two options?

Currently I am working to grow in my courage to embrace what I am calling “The Good Failure.” I am working to see failure not as “Bad” but as “Opportunity.” I will live a life that is aware of cost and impact, but at the same time does not take on the anxiety of “Failure” for myself or for others. I will live a life that courageously steps into all that God has for me. I will face failure with courage and curiosity and ask, “What do I need to learn from this?” “What can I celebrate from this experience?” “What is triggering my anxiety?” Along with any other questions relevant for my growth and transformation.

For me this means growing my tolerance to sit in my own pain, to wrestle with that familiar voice of shame, and to separate outcomes from identity. This is work that is incredibly hard for me because I have spent a lifetime of fusing performance and person into one. The hardest part is that there is no easy path for courage. How do we become courageous? By having courage! It is in that courage that I hope to discover the Good Failure!
